FRESHMEN STYLE

Style is freedom; It's a certain power we hold over everyone else. It can make us stand out or blend in, Style is what gives us status. It's what brings out the best or worst in us.

Ashley Ledburg has a unique sense of fashion. She is not afraid to try new things, and her outfits reflect her personality.

Korilee Connelly wears something different everyday depending on what mood she is in. She follows trends and makes her own.

"Label me how you want"
- Marshall Pratt

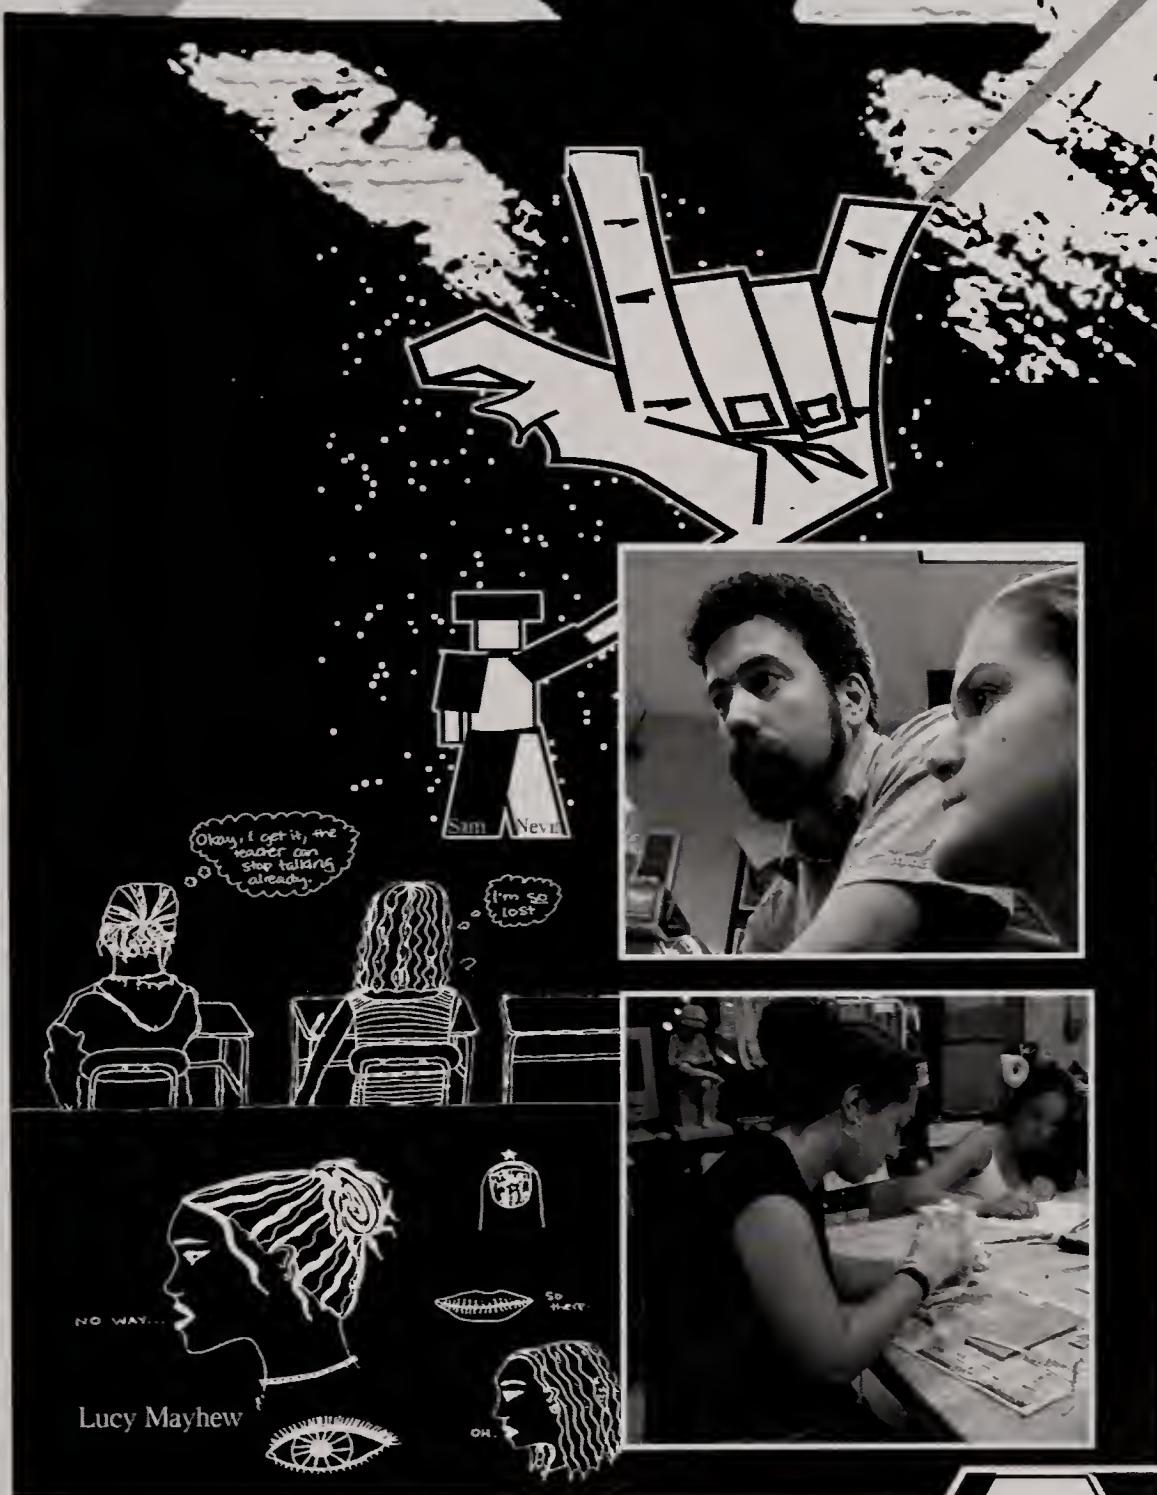

Ben Sweet has a style that reflects his personality and his personal achievement as a bass player in a band.

"Some men see things as they are and ask why. Others dream things that never were and ask why not." - George Bernard Shaw

Art is expressing yourself in any way you can.
It is the desire to create, observe, and to pursue.
Art is cooking, drawing, designing and capturing images. Art is the creative genius inside us all.

GRADE:09 CULTURE

Being a Freshman is terrifying, but finally being in High School makes it all worth it. Being a Freshman gives you more freedom then you could ever have in elementary school, with more opportunities to express who you are.

Senior Opinions

Music is a major part of high school for some students. Battle of The Bands was a major concert held at the Hot Tin Roof. At right we see Nick Sweet singing in his band.

Activities consist of anything from sports to parties to organized groups with a wide range of hobbies. Skateboarding is a popular sport among the senior population. Here we see John Demers about to take off for a few hours with friends.

THE... MATERIAL IDENTITY

Alex Buder:
"I dress the way I do because it's wacky and I'm wacky as well."

A wide range of expressive style is present in the grade. Students are all equal. Clothing is just your tool to define your personal perspective of style.

STYLE IS REPRESENTED IN EVERY PERSON. SOME HAVE NEVER CHALLENGED THEIR APPEARANCE AND OTHERS FLIRT NEW THEORIES OF DRESS EVERY DAY. FASHION IS UNIQUE TO EVERY GRADE AND INDEPENDENTLY RESERVED IN EACH STUDENT. OCCASIONALLY STYLES WILL MERGE INTO A TRIBE OF MULTIPLICATIVE STUDENT BODIES CALLED A "GROUP". BY THE FINAL YEAR IN H.S., EVOLUTION THROUGH THE STAGES OF TIME INDIVIDUALLY TRANSFORMS AND INFLUENCES EACH STUDENT BY THEIR OWN ENDEAVORS THROUGH QUESTS OF IDENTITY & COMFORT. >>BS

CROSS COUNTRY COURSE LINE

GIRLS CROSS COUNTRY

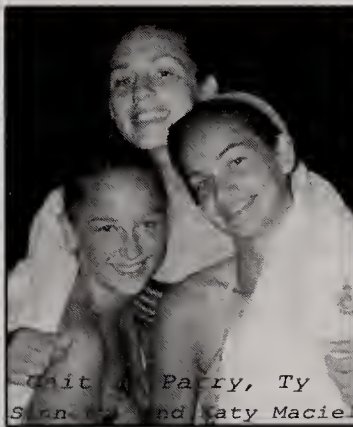

"Never have athletes worked so hard, hurt so much, and gone unnoticed for so long." Crowds may not rush to see the team, but with neck-and-neck finishes and all-out performances, the members of the cross country team are dedicated individuals.

Both boy's and girl's teams were tested by numerous injuries, but were able to show enormous success (even if it meant throwing up, passing out, or ripping their fingers to get their mind off of that taunting cramp).

The success of the girl's team in the last four years has been remarkable. They have run undefeated for 64 consecutive dual meets, 14 this year. They won their league, placed third in the Eastern Division and sixth in the entire state, leaving coach Joe Schroeder a lot to brag about. "Winning big came from preparing as a team," sophomore Ty Sinnett expressed. The boys team was 12-1 this season, and also won their league for the second time in a row, while placing sixth in the Eastern Massachusetts division.

The boys soccer had a great run this year. They didn't lose a game till late season. They had a great team with many seniors and good leadership with Denis Toomey and Nick Turner as the captains. A lot of people stepped up, like the big-time play of sophomore Lucas Brewer and first-year player Dan V. They had a successful run in the playoffs and beat Southeastern in the first round, but then lost to Duxbury in a thrilling game to end the season. They lost a lot of seniors, but they will have more big players step up and many returns like Goalie Russell Hodson.

The practices started roughly at 6AM and they lasted two weeks out of the summer. Hard work, tough play, and the occasional team dinners made the season unforgettable. Practices were followed by "Nell's," the physical training by assistant coach Nell Coogan. This was feared by most. This season the girls performed better than the previous year.

The boy's team ended last year with a bang. They made it to the playoffs in the 2001-2002 season. This year, however, they had a coaching change and lost a lot of starters. The team has added the youth and enthusiasm of four juniors and a sophomore, and the five returning seniors are working hard to have a successful finish.

Last season was successful. The team made it to the playoffs. They lost a few seniors but had many juniors on the team who got a lot of minutes and were waiting to take charge. All the seniors this year are 4 year players and have experience on the varsity level. They have opened so far with a 7-0 record and are trying to increase their winning season.

MARTHA'S WELCOME VINEYARD HOME OF THE
MASSACHUSETTS 2002 DIV. II
STATE BOYS ICE HOCKEY CHAMP.

As the pre-season polls picked the Vineyard on top, they had a lot to live up to in order to defend their Division II state crown. With the loss of only four players, the veterans were looked at to lead the charge and start off right where they ended last year. Through the year the team struggled through injuries and numerous ups-and-downs. An 11-5-4 regular season record landed the boys #4 in the state tournament, as they began a quest to back-to-back state titles.

After missing the playoffs by a couple of points last year, the girls came out of the gate flying with a 6-1 start. Although the girls went winless in their final twelve games of the season, including a heartbreaking loss to Cambridge late in overtime of the first round of their home tournament, the girls never quit playing each game to the final buzzer.

After an outstanding campaign in 2001 in which they went 18-4, entered the Division 2 State Tournament ranked #1, and lost a heartbreaker to eventual champ Bishop Feehan, the Vineyard had a lot to look forward to in 2002.

Sporting a 12-6 record in their 2002 campaign, the Vineyard entered the tournament ranked #8. In the first round, the Vineyard upended #9 Hanover 8-5.

With a strong core of seniors returning to the field, the Vineyard is poised to make a run at a state title.

Going 16-5 in 2001, ranked #4 in the tournament and losing to runner-up Westport in the first round, the Vineyard had a lot to look forward to in 2002.

After a long season, the Vineyard entered the tournament with an 11-6 record, ranked #16 out of 24 teams. The Vineyard was looking to make a run at a state title. Unfortunately, they suffered a tough first round loss to #17 East Bridgewater, 4-1.

With a strong team returning in 2003, the Vineyard will be a team to watch.

BOYS LACROSSE

The Boys Lacrosse team had a good start by going 4-0 in the Maritime League with victories over New Bedford, Bourne, and Bishop Connoly. They finished last season with a loss to the Wayland Warriors in the first round of the state tournament. The injury plagued team gave up two hard fought losses to Nantucket and a deflating loss to Barnstable. The team finished the season with just five of their ten active starters.

FRESHMAN CHORUS

Freshman Chorus is a year of training and transition for the beginning chorister. Through the use of appropriate exercises and choral literature, emphasis is on developing a foundation of healthy vocal production technique, and instilling a sense of community within the chorus through mutual respect and support, additional opportunities include participation in local, regional, and state auditions and festivals.

"Although the singing is not yet up to Minnesinger caliber, that doesn't seem to be a problem. Freshman chorus is a place to discover and develop your vocal talents. It's where you take your first steps toward the stage."

INDEPENDENCE

"FLUID DYNAMICS"

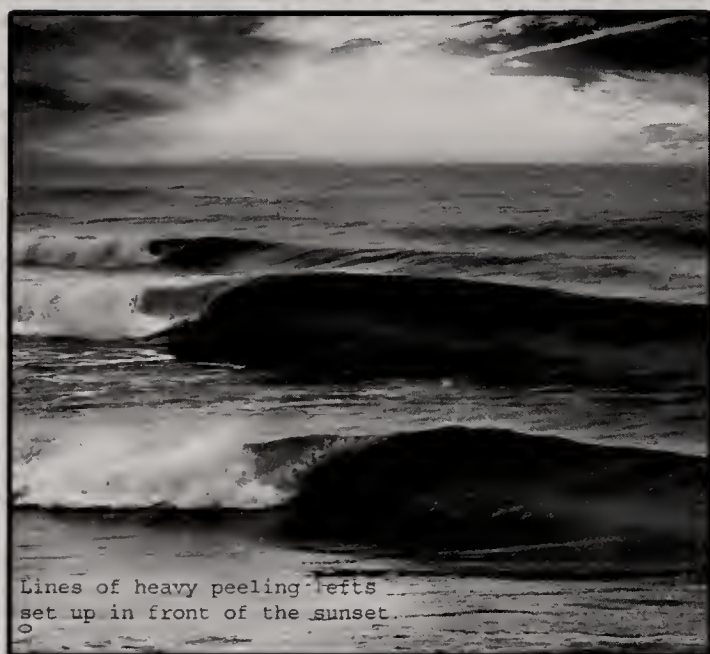

The elements in their simplest form, include earth, wind, water, fire. Riding a wave is the enrollment into an education of conquest for purpose and existence. The four elements promote mystic connection. Surfing allows for a different coordinate plane of travel. Life is timed on an x and y graph. Surfing is the conquest of an independent axis.

Lines of heavy peeling lefts set up in front of the sunset.

The essence of surfing is all here. Denny Jason headed out into the perfection of uncertainty.

Surfing is on a swell that is energy bundled in the transfer of wind to water as it coincides with the terrain of the earth's ocean floor. Harnessing these bands of ocean science fills the void in soul and mind. Imagine a journey unrestrained by borders, between the vortex of the earth and that of the cosmic canopy above. Surfing unshackles gravity and logic. Life and destiny are partially grasped by waves.

Skateboarding is the unity of friends and oneself. The visions of others performing moves that challenge your fear of trust and mental stability push all goals to an uncharted peak. Skateboarding is unique. It is the balance of an independent culture as it works with the support from observant accomplices.

Skateboarding is a portal to a dimension of mind, where mental endurance controls the unconscious destiny. It is the moments before takeoff to this realm when the brain casts out a shadow of blood or glory. On the horizon, choppy with uncertainty, is the seatbelt to an independent zenith. Knowledge of body and soul intermingles to roll away from tricks that appear candycoated and superfluous to those unaquainted with the philosophy of riding on a deck of wood, glue, and sandpaper.

A lot of people don't realize Ultimate Frisbee is even a sport. Some say it's a hippie game or something you play in gym class, but if you watch Ultimate players, you see the same level of excellence as in any professional sport. These guys go out there and sweat their guts out with the same amount of power and charisma as any quarterback, first baseman, or basketball center.

In ultimate, you get something you don't get in professional sports, though: you get guys who don't get paid, even on the highest level, and who find the time and money to fly around the world to tournaments, simply for the love of the game. You get guys who, after having their deal snatched away from them by inches, will go and tell the guy on the other team, 'nice breakup.' That's hard to find in any other sport."

SOUND

Sean George belts comedic blues through an old fashioned mic as teen fans honor his presence on stage.

Brian Alexander and Josh Grennan exchange lead riffs to an up beat reggae tempo set by drummer Marlon Grennan. Marlon's influence on drums is rooted in his father Winston's teaching of reggae drumming. Winston was a pioneer in reggae music and his work can be heard in the tunes of Bob Marley, Jimmy Cliff and Toots Hibbert.

Nick Sweet spews punk rock from his mic as bassist Grant Joiner revs the crowd into a mosh pit frenzy.

Ranges of music waver by tonal harmonies outside the doors of MVRHS. There is a society of musicians who create and develop music beyond the classrooms and auditorium. Their work is exposed during island wide performances and jam sessions. Their sounds vary from hard rock and traverse the mellodic pulses of jazz and reggae. Music is art. It is culture that reforms the artist's individual quest for audio perfection.

"Amigos são aqueles que mesmo longe um do outro não se separam nunca."

A NEW BEGINNING

At a time when life is already complicated and complex, an event such as relocating can have a great effect on a person. Students in the high school environment may have an especially difficult time during transition. Leaving friends, family, and a familiar setting is hard on its own, but also having to make new friends and become acclimated to novel territories can be devastating. Heather Hickey, a Junior, was amazed that everyone went out of their way to make her transition to the Island more comfortable. "At my old school no one would try to become your friend (if you were new). Even on my first day of school a lot of people introduced themselves to me and were friendly. That would never happen at my old school." Moving to an isolated island does have its good points... Students speak about their personal experiences of moving to Martha's Vineyard.

Senior Anna Gordon moved here her sophomore year of high school from West Virginia. She says the school system is much more advanced than in WV. She now lives with her grandmother, and absolutely loves it here. She remembers waking up at 4:30 am to do her hair and makeup in WV. "It's so refreshing to live here; I love the ocean, but I miss the mountains."

"He who chooses the beginning of a road chooses the place it leads to."

Anthony Masi, a senior, moved during his sophomore year from Holyoke, Mass. "It was hard becoming acclimated to a more rural town (West Tisbury) after living in a city-like environment my entire life. I do like living in Edgartown, though; it's almost in between the two places."

Leather Hickey, a junior, moved from Pennsylvania this year.

Senior Matthew Luce moved from Connecticut this year. "Making the transition was difficult at first, but worth it in the end. A lot of people don't realize how lucky they are to have such a beautiful backyard."

It is the means that determine the end." -Harry Emerson Fosdick

The High School View

The High School View is staffed and prepared entirely by students from the Martha's Vineyard Regional High School, and published on their behalf by The Martha's Vineyard Times, with the generous assistance of the sponsors whose names appear below.

New Bar Serves Teens

By Simone McCarthy

The regional high school is now home to a student-run coffee bar, known formally as "Le Petite Cafe." The cafe is a rolling cart and a small table set up in a school hallway, selling coffee, tea, hot chocolate, chai, and baked goods.

To the teachers and students found waiting patiently in line at the coffee bar every morning, it's a welcomed addition to the school.

"The coffee bar is a good idea. It gives the students who don't have time in the morning to get coffee before school get some in school. Sometimes you need that cup of coffee to get you going," said freshman Emile Pochat.

The coffee bar is a division of the high school's business club, run primarily by juniors Amelia Hatchard, Anya Toteanu, Sean Nash, and Jenna Bagnall.

Leo Frame is the Business Club advisor. The idea for an in-school coffee bar was conceived in one of Mr. Frame's Entrepreneurship courses. There was a lack of interest in putting ideas into action; the idea was shelved.

In May of 2002, Amelia approached Mr. Frame with her own thoughts about starting a coffee bar. From there, action met idea and "Le Petite Cafe" became a work in progress.

The Coffee Bar started gaining momentum in June of 2002, when Amelia began researching brewing equipment, types of coffee, and pricing. Surveys were given out to get a consensus of how interested the student body was in gaining a coffee bar. This September, order lists were compiled and the juniors involved worked out the kinks of making the coffee in school.

"Le Petite Cafe" opened October 1. Since then, the work has increased for Amelia, Anya, Jenna, and Sean. The four students alternate getting to school at 7 am every morning to set up, sell, and then clean up after the Coffee Bar, additionally dedicating free periods to making sure that everything is prepared for the next morning.

The weekly profits for the coffee bar are around $200-$300. Mr. Frame and business students hope that money will go towards coffee bar expansion throughout the school, and an end-of-the-year trip for the Business Club.

Despite the warm reception for the coffee bar, some students and teachers have expressed concern about selling caffeinated beverages on school grounds because of caffeine's reputation as an addictive stimulant.

"Personally, I do not see much wrong with coffee. I think it's better for kids to be alert in their classes rather than asleep on their desks," said Amelia. "We sell other things besides coffee. We have hot chocolate, a large selection of tea, and chai."

Le Petite Cafe has quickly become a part of the regional high school, a place for students and teachers alike to gather and socialize before class.

Students Assist School As Teachers

By Bryan Mulvey

A record number of students this year are serving as teacher's assistants. And for many, especially seniors, the assistantships offer an opportunity to explore a path that could lead to a career.

Regional high school history teacher Marge Harris believes the program has benefited teachers and students. She said that her teaching assistants have been a tremendous help. She enjoys the fact that she is helping to teach a possible future teacher.

Mrs. Harris says that the program is definitely worth having, and hopes that it continues. She says that not only the students learn, but she learns as well, and sees a whole new side of the student.

Senior and teaching assistant Ben Retmier said, "I learned the students' point of view. The program helps me see what goes into teaching. I've been given the opportunity to help grade tests and homework, and see how the grading is done."

Working closely with a teacher can have the effect of inspiring students as well. Said Ben of his mentor, history teacher Corinne Kurtz, "She embodies what I hope to be as a teacher, someone who is enthusiastic about the material and interested in the lives of her students."

Ben feels that some students have shown interest in the extra help he offered them, and sometimes getting help from a fellow student is easier than matching schedules with a teacher.

He said that the program is valuable because it helps students who aspire to be teachers receive first-hand experience in the classroom.

It helps students make career choices that will possibly fill the expected teacher shortage that our country faces in the next few years.

Beads of Remembrance

Three students from the regional high school have begun a memorial to honor the victims of the Holocaust. Using beads on a chain, Lizzie Edwards, Becca Hamilton, and Amelia Hatchard hope to represent each of the six million Jewish casualties of World War II.

Through writing letters to bead manufacturers, these students have collected millions of beads and are still asking for donations. At 6 pm on November 21, the Holocaust project will be holding a beading session for anyone interested in assisting with this venture. In room 505 at the MVRHS.

Elaine Weintraub, the advisor to the project, welcomes both members of the community and students to this event.

New Mindscape of Music Floats in from Iceland

By Ben Robinson

Who is Sigur Rós? The space fuzz mystery band hailing from the cave lands of Reykjavik, Iceland, has graced the U.S. with their third installment of essential cloud music.

Music Review

ambiguously titled "()." Seductively angelic atmospheres present throughout this album seem to beam down from the heavens.

"()" kicks off with an optimistic, orchestral piece driven by a piano chord progression reminiscent of Radiohead's most recent recordings. Later, "Untitled (5)," entrenched in the album's core, employs a subtle, summoning bass line, textural cynical, and snare drum sweeps, cello bowed electric guitar, and ambient synth pads.

Barely audible vocals reside in the background, in singer Jonsi's invented language of hopelandic.

The record's sixth epic song (most are at least seven minutes in length) shapes a similar vibe but achieves a percussive, tribal rhythm in juxtaposition with Jonsi's haunting vocal plea.

The album's liner notes sum up the theme of the recording best. According to the band, the 12 wordless pages exist for the listener to fill in his or her own interpretations of the lyrics, the music, the album as whole, and whatever else they deem worthwhile. But perhaps they were meant to simply remain blank.

"()" is a stellar but tranquil recording, sure to evoke emotions in its listeners, if not perhaps drive them dreamily insane with its inextinguishable atmospheric serenity.

Hans Buder shows Stuart Bangs how his project works.

The Science Fair had a wide variety of projects. They ranged from nail polish to plants and toilet paper. A reoccurring theme this year was teeth. Six projects contained them, be it decaying or whitening. Hans Buder's How Sweet It Is won 1st, Sean Nash's Finding the Best Whitening Toothpaste won 2nd, and Emma Young's Finding the Perfect Paper Towel got 3rd. The Friends of Sengekontacket Award went to Stuart Bangs for What's In Your Tap Water. Audrey Furlong and Emily Freedman Miller won 1st in the team competitions with Flammability of Matches Under Certain Conditions.

Sean Nash also won 1st in the chemistry category and a calculator during the raffle.

Sophomore Wars

In June Mr. DeBettencourt's classes do a second project. They must build a boat out of cardboard and duct tape. The catch is that it must be able to carry the number of people who built it in a race. This race has no winners and only two parts. 1st: the one-on-one to a buoy and back. 2nd: the all-out battle to sink each others boat. In 2002 four sophomores: Tom Stackpole, Rob Hale, Luke Bartkus, and Stuart Bangs, returned to challenge the new freshman. Dressed with matching shirts, cardboard swords and sheilds, they brought a stereo with war music. Their boat the Trinity was assailed by all of the freshmen during the battle. Their boat was one of the few to survive. "We have been banned from next year's race," said Rob "we were too good."

Scores of people gathered to watch the race.

RETIRED TEACHERS: SENIORS ONCE AGAIN

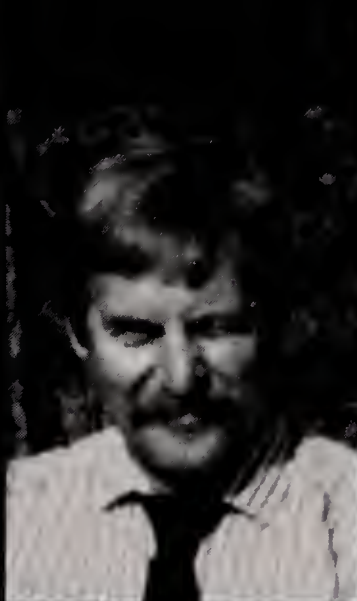

There are some teachers who can make students thirst for knowledge. These teachers inspire, encourage, and support their students to the highest degree. Now Martha's Vineyard Regional High School is saying goodbye to two such teachers. This year both Mr. Joannidi and Mrs. Murphy are retiring. These teachers have dedicated many years to improving the quality of education at Martha's Vineyard Regional High School.

Mr. Joannidi has been teaching at MVRHS for the past 27 years. This year he will be 61 and plans to travel and see the world. Even when he is a seasoned traveller, Mr. Joannidi says he will always remember with much fondness the thousands of young people he has had the privilege of knowing, as well as the magical lifestyle he and his family have shared with Martha's Vineyard.

Barbara Murphy

Mrs. Murphy grew up on Martha's Vineyard and is a graduate of this high school where she has taught for the past 28 years. Mrs. Murphy feels it is time to do other things. She plans to travel and do volunteer work. She says the years have sped by and no matter what the future may bring, the Island and MVRHS have enriched her life immeasurably.

Below is Mrs. Murphy's senior square from when she was a senior at MVRHS. The photographs on this page are of her as a student and a teacher at the same school.

POLL QUESTIONS

FACULTY

How many cups of coffee do you drink before school?

The earliest a staff member has arrived at MVRHS is...

4:00am

The latest a staff member has exited MVRHS for the day is...

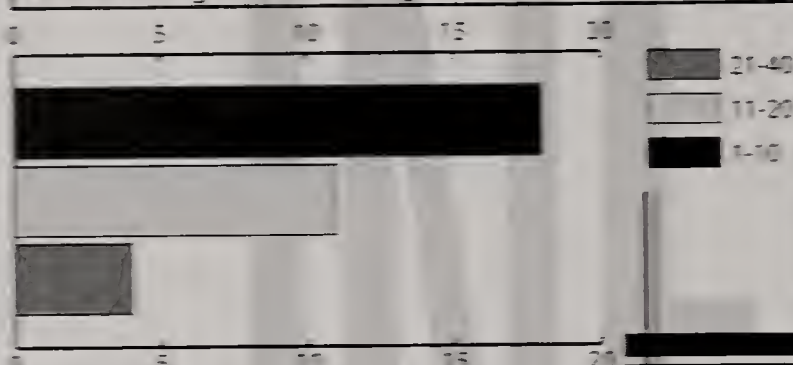

1:00am

Mr. Ross has even spent the entire night at school while awake and still working.

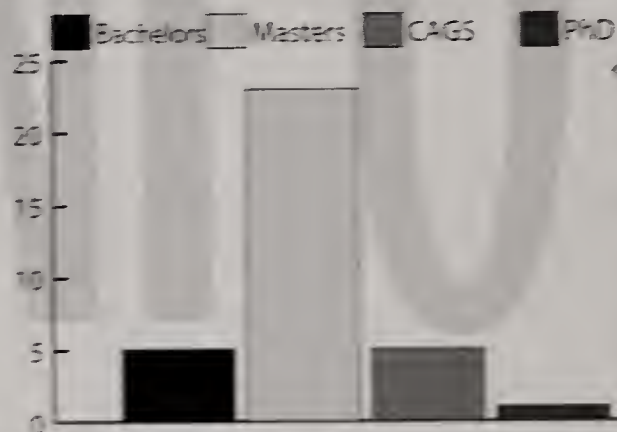

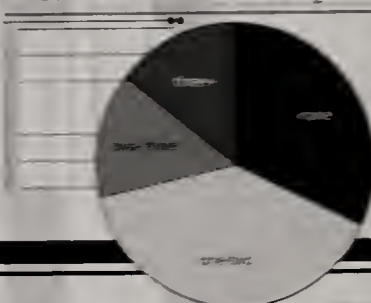

Some teachers at MVRHS have filled out as many as 200 pink slips during the duration of their career.

How many pink slips have you filled out in your career? Fill out here: 100

On average how many recommendations do you write per year?

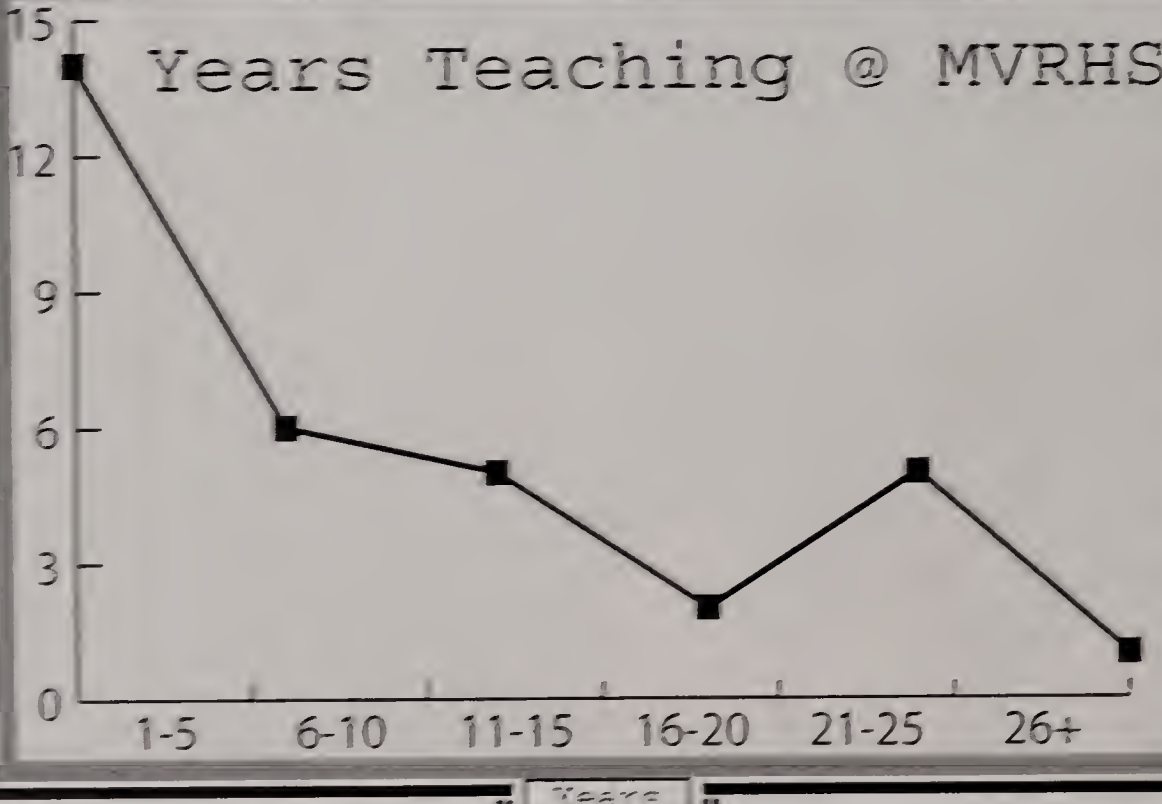

How many hours do they each take to complete?

What is their degree?

Years Teaching @ MVRHS

Randomized Statistics:

No teachers ride a bus to school.

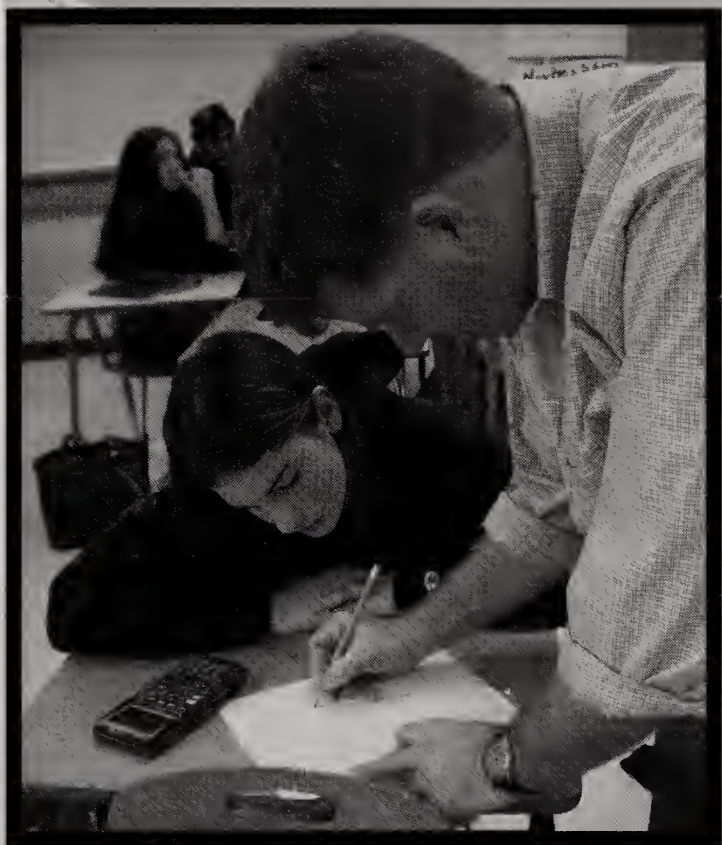

Some faculty members have not ever filled out a pink slip.

According to this poll no teacher has ever written over forty recommendations.

Science, History and Art seem to be the most popular or sought after courses besides the course that the polled teacher is currently in.

The majority of the teachers get to school by car, yet a few opt to ride a bike.

Mr. Henke helps Kevin Johnson finish up the first semester of the year. This is Mr. Henke's 18th year at MVRHS. He teaches Mac Pro -grams and key-board typing.

Mr. Munn helps Katherine DeBettencourt with Physical Science. Mr. Munn has been teaching Physics and Physical Science at MVRHS for the past four years with his wife Dr. Munn, who teaches Chemistry.

It's always good to see new faces here at MVRHS. To the right we see Mrs. DeGrandpre assisting Jared Silvia with his Algebra I work in preparation for midterms. She has been teaching math here since September.

Most of the Senior Class will be moving on to college. Others will take time off to travel, and some will work. Most MVRHS students claim they would rather attend a college located outside of Massachusetts, either because the weather's too cold or they're ready to see another part of the world.

Success is measured by how much money you make, or by how much "stuff" you have. Shouldn't it be based on a personal level of satisfaction?

DEFINITION: SUCCESS

"The achievement of something desired, planned, or attempted."

City life will be a big adjustment for many graduates. A lot of seniors are used to having a car, so public transportation will be hard to get adjusted to. We're all looking forward to our new life, no matter what the challenges may be.

To laugh often and much; To win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children;
To earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends;
To appreciate beauty, to find the best in others; To leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition;
To know even one life had breathed easier because you have lived. This is to have succeeded.

Two roads diverged in a highschool wood,
 And I chose the one less traveled by, backtracked,
 Gave the one everyone goes down a try, backtracked,
 Then sat down at the grassy fork somewhat confused..

And being a traveler amongst many,
 Decided it was okay to go my own pace..
 Once in a while it rained leaving mud on my pants,
 And other days shined of sun creating warmth
 I learned the world looks different sitting down,
 Family and true friends sat with me,
 Which allows me to tell this with ease
 Somewhere ages and ages hence:
 Two roads diverged in a wood, and I —
 I took time excepting to go ahead happy to be me..
 But I didn't leave a trail of breadcrumbs..
 Instead I left seeds so the trees could grow back..
 And that has made all the difference.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF
Naomi McCarren
August 12, 1985 ~ April 23, 2006
I'd like the memory of me to be a happy one,
I'd like to leave an afterglow
of smiles when life is done,
I'd like to leave an afterglow
of happiness softly down the road,
Of happy times and laughing
tears and bright and sunny days, I'd like the tears of those who grieve to dry before the sun,
Of happy memories that I leave
When life is done.

Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night
Dylan Thomas

*Do not go gentle into that good night,
Old age should burn and rave at close of day;
Rage, rage against the dying of the light.*

*Though wise men at their end know dark is right, Because their words had forked no lightning they
Do not go gentle into that good night.*

*Good men, the last wave by, crying how bright
Their frail deeds might have danced in a green bay,
Rage, rage against the dying of the light.*

*Wild men who caught and sang the sun in flight,
And learn, too late, they grieved it on its way,
Do not go gentle into that good night.*

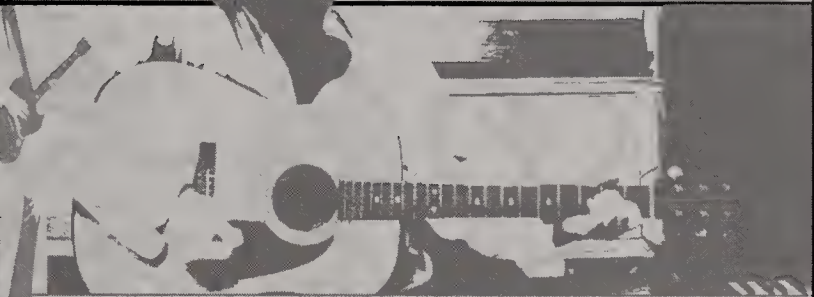

*Grave men, near death, who see with blinding sight
Blind eyes could blaze like meteors and be gay,
Rage, rage against the dying of the light.*

*And you, my father, there on the sad height,
Curse, bless, me now with your fierce tears, I pray.
Do not go gentle into that good night.
Rage, rage against the dying of the light.*

Life: Through the years I have found out that life is pretty simple. It is set for you on a line segment like math. You have A the begin-gin, and B the ending. I think I took a wrong turn because I'm somewhere around E or F. I have never been good at this math thing.

JoAnne: Though not my mother by birth, you came into my life... you gave me unconditional love. To me you are an angel from above. Thank you.

Family: I have been blessed with the best family you can get. I have great brothers, the best sister, and loving parents. I really owe a lot to my family for getting me through these four years. My grandmother has done the most for me, tutoring me in English so I was ready for the next step. My aunts and uncles shaped me with their tough love. Now, I'm ready. Thanks to the Townes's, Rose's, McCarthy's, and the MacDonalds. Thanks to Mike McCarthy for being a great uncle, thank you.

Friends: Zach great 48 hour friend, DMB was great. Movie nights with Meg, dinner at Neptunes. Craig our movie is waiting. Rebello, McCarthy, Godek, and Sullo the madden crew, undisputed champion. Derek you owe me a slice of flavored pizza. Denis taught me the ways of a true soccer defensemen. Hanging out with Greenberg.

Cheers to- All my friends, who happen to be the funniest people in the world. To the times I beat the bell and to the times I somehow landed on my feet. To all the victories for my teams. To the movies that have inspired me. To the after school sports that have kept my mind sane. To my parents who are the most incredible people in the world. To my brothers who are my best friends. To New England sports teams. To the courts and to the Pimpwagon. To the endless movie and tv quotes. To all the trips and concerts and to all the ones that are to come. To the times on the Fleet ice. And to the future, which I can only hope will be as fantastic as the past has been.

Thanks and much love to all. When asked about High School- "I laughed a lot."

There are three rules that I live by: never get less than twelve hours sleep; never play cards with a guy who has the same first name as a city; and never get involved with a woman with a tattoo of a dagger on her body. Now you stick to that, and everything else is cream cheese.

My Goddess sings with a fury that would humble a dragon.
In her chest, a sound murmurs before shaking in a shrillness so high angels cower in their luminous heights.

Her roar, errupting from an unknown physique emanates through her very skull and fingertips.
But not a hum escapes her cracked lips.

This morning I awoke and let out a cry Lucifer found disturbing.
As I danced my way to the bath
I saw mirrors in my eyes and the ink of sound pressed up against my lips

She echoed out with the thick sounding cry of liberation released from the iron grip of my fears.

Upon her departure, I found her dances still emanating through my skin and bones
Causing my breath to pulse with the rythm of the ocean and the moon, a reminder, Nobody can stop my fury, no one can quench my fire.

"The future is here. It's just not widely distributed yet."-- William Gibson

into My Own

One of my wishes is that those dark trees,
So old and firm they scarcely show the breeze,
Were not, as 'twere, the merest mask of gloom,
But stretched away unto the edge of doom.

I should not be withheld but that some day
Into their vastness I should steal away,
Fearless of ever finding open land,
Or highway where the slow wheel pours the sand.

I do not see why I should e'er turn back,
Or those should not set forth upon my track
To overtake me, who should miss me here
And long to know if still I held them dear.

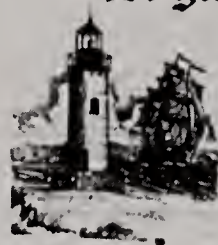

They would not find me changed from him they knew--
Only more sure of all I thought was true.

Student Scientists Present Findings

By Jesse Sylvia

Plants were given acid, rockets were launched and many balls were bounced in preparation for the regional high school's fourth annual science fair.

Approximately 165 students attended to boast their results to the fair's 31 judges. Awards were given to all students for their participation in the fair.

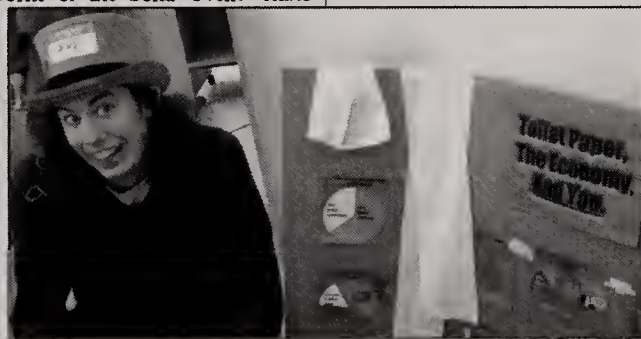

"I think it was really successful. We had a lot of students sign up, and I was surprised that that many people showed up despite the bad weather," said Dr. Munn, science fair coordinator and chemistry teacher at the regional high school.

By noon five winners were selected out of 135 projects for categorical awards. The biology division was won by Michelle Holmberg with her project "Reach for the Sky." Sean Nash's project, "Finding the Best Whitening Toothpaste," took first in chemistry. Ashleigh Poirier won the Earth/Environmental section with her project "Plants on Acid," and the Engineering/Computers/Mathematics section was taken by Alyssa Fitzpatrick and her "The Design and Works of the Solar Oven." Hans Buder climbed to the top of the largest division, Physics, with his project titled "How Sweet It Is" and went on to win the entire fair, collecting the $200 prize. Second place went to Sean Nash, and third went to Emma Young, who also took second in Chemistry.

In the partners category, Audrey Furlong and Emily Freeman Miller won for their project, "Flammability of Matches Under Certain Conditions."

Junior Alex Whall presents an insightful look at the effects of toilet paper on the economy at the annual science fair.

Pakistani Teens Opine on College, Afghanistan, and al Qaeda

By Zach Gerson-Nieder

Recently I had the opportunity to explore, through the words of four of my teenage contemporaries, the other side of the world. Using email, I contacted four Pakistani juniors and seniors who attend the International School of Karachi in Karachi, Pakistan. Their names were Alishba Kassim, Sawad Hussein, Farah Imam, and Student H, who asked that his name not be used.

The entire staff is American, but the students are all Pakistani. It used to be an American school, but there are no longer any American students because of the current political crisis. It is an elite school, like an American private school in many ways.

Pakistan is an Islamic country; however, the students' school is not religious. "Religion doesn't play much of a role in my school because it is clearly an American based program," said Farah.

In this specific school there isn't any play of Islam," said Sawad. "However every Friday school gets out at 12:30 instead of 2:50. This is because Friday is a holy day, and everyone has to get to the mosque." Sawad also said, "It's just a whole matter of respect of the country's culture." Students are allowed to wear the same kind of American styles, like t-shirts, tanks top, and capris.

"I believe that the basic necessities of life constitute the division of the social classes here," said Farah. "Many lower class people over here do not even get enough food for the day, let alone luxuries such as a telephone."

Alishba said, "A small part of Pakistan's population consists of people that live in big houses, own expensive cars, and run big businesses." Most others he said, "Do not concern themselves with good living, but merely with living." Most of this larger, poorer class is un-educated and live in poverty.

Just like here in the United States, what students do in Pakistan after high school depends on social background. Those who can afford college go, those who can't, mostly don't. With such a large lower class, "In Pakistan, even high school is a big achievement," Student H said, "because of a lack of government funding for schools, and the lack of financial resources by most families."

In Pakistan, like America, college is important for getting ahead. "Like the States, it's essential to have a complete knowledge of the career you plan to do, said Farah. "Many who do not go to college, usually have no choice but to take over their father's business."

Most Pakistanis go to university in Pakistan, while a few lucky ones go to schools in other countries. Sawad is applying to Columbia and Yale, but he said, "A current problem about going to college in the United States is receiving visas." This seems to be an effect of the war on terrorism.

Changes have been going on in Pakistan pertaining to education. "The IT revolution has greatly influenced Pakistan," said Alishba. Specialized schools are also in Pakistan. "For, example," said Sawad, "in Karachi the Indus is renowned for the arts."

The Pakistani students had strong opinions about America's war on terrorism. "The war on terror, in my opinion, has not progressed in any way," said Farah. "I believe that violence in no way is a way to revert ideas. But the notion of rebounding violence, which in effect has been caused by violence, seems irrational."

Most of the other students seemed to agree that, while terror cannot be condoned, America is not dealing with it in the correct way. "There is no justification for them [America] to wage war on suspect nations to ensure their survival," said Student H.

Alishba said, "I think the war on terrorism started off with good intentions to help the world community. However now in my opinion it has become a threat much like an other violent organization."

Another issue of concern to these students is the relationship between Pakistan and India. "Being a person who has been brought up in Pakistan, I am supposed to have a natural ill-will towards India," said Alishba. "But in all honesty, I think the conflict between the two countries is a waste of time. I do not think that the rest of the world really understands what is going on between them. It is not just a conflict relating to Kashmir, but more so a religious and cultural conflict? It is complex and deeply rooted."

Student H said, "The Pakistani and Indian conflict, in my opinion, is a futile waste of resources for our country. If we pull out from Kashmir and use those resources (about 10 billion U.S. dollars annually), we can make great progression for education and healthcare in our nation."

President Bush has a strong plan for the Middle East, and I wanted to know what Middle Eastern students thought about it.

"George Bush, according to many, is most definitely acting without thinking," said Farah. "I must ask, does one really think that he will attain peace through violence?"

Student H said, "Iraq may be creating weapons of mass destruction, but then most nation are, so either punish everyone, including European Union countries and the United States, or back off." All of the students felt that the United States had no justification, and without justification there should be no war.

It is known well known that since the attack on Afghanistan by the United States, many al Qaeda fighters have been hiding in the mountainous area between Pakistan and Afghanistan. This does not mean, however, that the people of Pakistan support al Qaeda.

"Al Qaeda without a doubt is a terrorist organization," said Alishba. "Since it intentionally and with malice took the lives of so many thousands of people."

Student H said, "Our religion preaches peace, not war, and most tenets preached by al Qaeda are untrue and purely misinterpreted."

The World Trade Center attack was met with horror, anguish, and anger here in the United States. But how was it taken in Pakistan, and what are the attitudes towards the United States as a whole?

Both Student H and Alishba agreed that the World Trade Center attack was tragic and wrong. However, they different opinions about America. Alishba said, "Any attack on civilization is horrific and unjustifiable, no matter what and no matter who it is by."

Alishba said, "There were traces of bitterness toward America after [the bombing] occurred. As a neighbor to Afghanistan, we were direct witnesses to the death and destruction taking place due to the American bombings."

"American foreign policy is to blame," said Student H. "America's support of Israel and her terror activities on the Palestinians is one such reason that Muslims harbor so much resentment towards America."

"Most countries firmly believe that independence is the core cause of the progress of the world today," said Farah. "And if America is not cooperative then sadly but inevitably there is bloodshed."

Communications between countries and emerging global communities start between regular people, not always leaders. Being able to communicate with Pakistani students, even in a limited way, is a huge step in breaking stereotypes and understanding their lives and political views.

New Policy Tightens Dress Code

By Drew de Geofroy

An epidemic of exposed midriffs and sagging belt lines is spreading through the regional high school. The school's administration is working on a cure, but to some it may work to inflame the problem, and possibly cause some nasty side effects.

This year's student handbook, under the section that describes appropriate dress, encourages students to wear clothing that "inspires respect for the school," rather than imposes a dress code that dictates what students should wear.

"We had a year-long discussion at school council, with community leaders and parents wanting strong guidelines for dress," said Peg Regan, principal.

"Girls' fashions were getting more showy, exposing midriffs and belly buttons. One question that came up was 'should we be physically defining how much midriff a girl can expose?'"

The new guidelines have many students and teachers unsure about what exactly shows respect for the school, and how it would be enforced appropriately.

"[The administration] decided that the word respect gave us enough of a jumping off point with a student that was underdressed, or wearing a shirt that says 'Nantucket sucks' on it," said Mrs. Regan.

As for the word respect, some are wondering what exactly the definition of the word is.

"That's incredibly vague. I don't even know what that's supposed to mean," said senior Ben Retmiller.

"It must be purposefully vague to allow teachers and administrators to use their discretion. For example, there is now a school rule against logos for beer on shirts, but I've seen a student return from Ireland with a shirt that has a small pocket logo for Guinness beer, and I don't think I would make a big deal of it," said Keith Dodge, English teacher.

Some people feel that the new dress guideline is a good thing because it is ambiguous, and others feel it is too ambiguous to be effective.

While many are quick to use the words "dress code," Mrs. Regan makes a point to mention that we have a guideline rather than a dress code, as code implies something more strict or specific.

Creative expression or dress code violation? This year students at the regional high school confront the ambiguous issue of what dressing with respect for the school really means.

"I don't think anyone wants to be the dress code Nazi," said Mr. Dodge.

"I agree that the dress code is too vague, and it should be more specific. We need a dress code because we have members of both sexes wearing clothes inappropriate to school," said Duncan Ross, government and theater teacher.

"I think if you keep it broad it puts responsibility on the students, which I like, but it depends on how it is being enforced. The problems I've seen are things like a student wearing a Confederate flag on his arm, and another with a swastika on his back. In most cases I've dealt with, the students are for the most part clueless about what they mean," said Margaret Harris, history teacher.

Said senior Brett Armstrong, "One of our school's qualities is our individuality. By [creating] this policy, it's attempting to curb our creativity."

Teacher Returns From South Africa

By Nina Ferry

I decided to walk straight, walk quickly, and told myself don't look down. However, the other two ladies I was crossing with decided to take pictures half way to the other side. The bridge was swaying and I am thinking this thing is only held up by vines...but I took a deep breath and made it to the other side. I am just glad I did it!

The regional high school's history teacher, Margaret Harris, conquered the tiny rope bridge, used in the scenes from "Indiana Jones," hundreds of feet above a ravine. And although she walked away from the bridge experience a little shaky, she was in awe because of her success crossing the bridge, even with her fear of heights. She was also in awe of the beauty of her surroundings. She said, "I got an opportunity to see a country I've always admired and never been to."

South Africa, a nation torn by apartheid until 1994, was a phenomenal experience for Mrs. Harris, who finally got her chance to go this August, through the Fulbright program.

Although Mrs. Harris earned a master's in African Studies, she never would allow herself to go to South Africa because of their system of government and her participation in the Civil Rights Movement of the 60s in the United States. She said, "I wouldn't support their system of Apartheid because I didn't believe in it."

Mrs. Harris' involvement in the Civil Rights Movement proved to be one of the best things she ever did. "It helped me grow. I learned to listen, commit, and make my own choices," she said. She also developed an admiration for Nelson Mandela. "I admire his hope more than anything else, but also his strength and joy about life."

One of the most educational parts of the trip was when Mrs. Harris experienced black poverty by staying with a South African family; she wished she could have stayed longer to learn more.

"[The house] was very clean inside. It had four rooms; a wonderful little house in the middle of similar houses. But all around it there were tin shacks, what they call informal housing. Contrary to the stereotype of apparent poverty, I found the shacks to be very clean and inviting. Most of the shacks even had lace curtains on the windows. Even though I was in a high crime area, the community was so inviting that I felt safe and slept comfortably at night," said Mrs. Harris.

With the awareness that she gained on this trip, Mrs. Harris is planning on doing a 30-minute presentation for each of her Global Studies classes, to heighten the students' understanding of how far South Africa has come and what its citizens are still dealing with today. "Although Apartheid has ended legally, it still has a long way to go. There is still a lot of racism and economic struggle within [the country]," she said.

When Mrs. Harris started her trip, she had no expectations because she has learned to be open to a place, to experience everything it has to offer. "It was beautiful, an unbelievable experience. There were Hippos in the rivers and I got to go to Robin Island where Nelson Mandela was imprisoned," she said.

Sixteen teachers from around the country accompanied Mrs. Harris on her month-long trip and she continues to keep in touch with four or five of them by email. When she got home, Mrs. Harris was exhausted because they had moved every two days the whole month, but she thought of it as a refreshing tired because she had learned so much.

International Exchange Opportunities For Students

Since 1998, the Martha's Vineyard Rotary Club has been sending and receiving high school students on international exchanges.

Director of the International Committee, Lori Herman, is hosting an informational meeting for interested candidates at 6:30 pm, Nov. 4, at the Martha's Vineyard Regional High School.

The students chosen will reside abroad for approximately eleven months, rotating their residence with up to four families. Host families may volunteer through the Rotary Club in their district.

Students Respond To Columbia Tragedy

By Rob Hale

"I was sleeping and my dad called me from his cell phone to wake me up, and he told me to go watch the news. I was fast asleep and totally out of it. All I remember hearing was my dad saying, 'Lauren, wake up, go put the news on and watch it. Our space shuttle just blew up!' I didn't know what to do and was so flustered. I just hung up without saying goodbye. I thought it was another terrorist attack. I didn't know what was going on, and I was definitely nervous. All

I could think about was there are too many things going wrong in America right now and I was scared. My flag's at half mast."

- Lauren Bedford, junior

"There is such a big deal being made about it, and it's a real tragedy, but it seems that people only care about certain things right now. There are so many other things happening in our world right now that we should care more about. I think people need to look around them and realize we need to care about them too. We care so much about an international space station, and it being so unified and peaceful, and I think we need to worry more about global peace down here on earth first."

- Zach Gerson-Neider, junior

"I was going to shoot a movie and go out to get some footage. As I turned on the TV and watched the news, it took the energy right out of me, and all I could do was sit around and do nothing all day. It made everything else seem so insignificant. I didn't feel like doing anything. All I could think of was all the families who lost their loved ones. Now I want to be an astronaut. This tragedy made me think that maybe I could make a difference as an astronaut. Maybe I could help the space program."

- Stuart Bangs, junior

"My mom told me that the space shuttle had problems, and I turned the TV on and saw it break up. When I was down in Alabama at the NASA school for kids they showed me pictures of the Challenger, and as I watched the news I thought 'Oh man, here we go again.' I was shocked but then I thought of when I went through the simulation of crashing in training. Everything is moving fast. It's like being in a terrible earthquake. All it takes is the shuttle to move 10 degrees and everything can go wrong."

- Alex Buder, senior

"The space program has become even more important in recent years because resources are so limited, and because people are going to war over and oil and resources, and once those resources are gone we are going to need more supplies. I think that they need to put more money into the space program, but we need to realize what they are putting the money into and what they are going to do with it. Twenty years ago there was a clear plan of how to colonize the moon, but now they aren't thinking it through as much. You have to think about it in terms of when people were moving west in America. Today there is no place to go, so we need to put more money into the space program so they can help us colonize other planets for more room. Colonization, mining, and sending corporations into space would help the economy much like when we first went into the west."

- Thomas Stackpole, junior

End of the Bumpy Road

By Luke Bartkus

He will be traveling to England, Sweden, and Scotland at the end of this school year. He will be celebrating his 35th wedding anniversary on St. Patrick's Day. He will be turning 61 this summer.

But Gregory Joannidi, affectionately known as Mr. Jo or "Bumpy," will not be returning to his teaching them to the high school. The school shed was so overcrowded with broken lawnmowers that I ended up taking two or three of them home. One day, Joannidi came over and asked to borrow a lawnmower to cut his grass, even though his lawn was mostly rocks. About half an hour later, he returned with the lawnmower — broken, and asked for another one. He destroyed three of them that day."

and seniors, but no matter the age of his students, he has always stressed the importance of self confidence.

Before he was a teacher, Mr. Joannidi was a hotel manager in Jackson, New Hampshire, living with his wife, who was teaching at a nearby school. The Catholic school in their neighborhood closed unexpectedly one day and his wife's school was overwhelmed with students. One

Students who have had Mr. Joannidi for a teacher have appreciated his personality on the first day of class. "He was very relaxed and he made you feel comfortable," said senior Matthew Kisly. "Mr. Jo took away some of the stress that was associated with the first day of high school."

Math teacher Ken DeBettencourt, who had Mr. Jo for a teacher in 1983, said, "He really pulls kids into the class and makes them enjoy it."

Mr. Joannidi enjoys a closely knit group of friends at the high school.

to relate the events of his life to everything we learn. This style makes the class much more enjoyable, and easier to understand at the same time."

"One of my big plans for the future is to travel to France and tour the World War I trenches," Mr. Joannidi said.

After 27 years of teaching, Mr. Joannidi has decided to move on, but not before leaving some words of appreciation. "I would like to say thank you to Mrs. Harris for being a very special person and a wonderful co-worker. I also want to mention Louis Tuscano. He was the best of the best and one of the most inspirational teachers I have ever met."

History teacher Marge Harris, who started teaching at the high school with Mr. Joannidi in 1976 said, "I don't know what I'll do without him. We're not only colleagues, we're good, good friends. He's one of the most brilliant, stimulating minds I know."

"While Mr. Joannidi is a great teacher, he's like John Morelli when it comes to mechanical things," said James Lobdell, long-time friend and former teaching colleague. "I used to fix lawnmowers some time ago. And when the lawnmowers were really old, people would simply donate

"But in the classroom he was a marvel to watch. The way he uses wonderful stories to flesh out his teachings make some students believe he's been in every war since the Civil War. But that's the Joannidi factor."

Mr. Joannidi has taught at the high school for 27 years. He has taught global studies as well as government. He has taught freshmen day. Mr. Joannidi received a call asking if he would help teach at the school. He has been teaching ever since.

After visiting the Vineyard only once, he and his wife decided it was the perfect place to raise their two daughters. Mr. Joannidi said, "I appreciate the magical childhood that the Vineyard provides. It's the perfect place for children."

However, "He does not keep to himself," said Corinne Kurtz history teacher. Ms. Kurtz has known Mr. Joannidi for two and a half years. "Mr. Joannidi's philosophy that everybody deserves to learn is wonderful. Mr. Joannidi will always watch out for newcomers. He helped me get established when I began teaching here."

Until the philosophy which holds one race
Superior and another inferior
Is finally and permanently discredited and abandoned
Everywhere is war, me say war

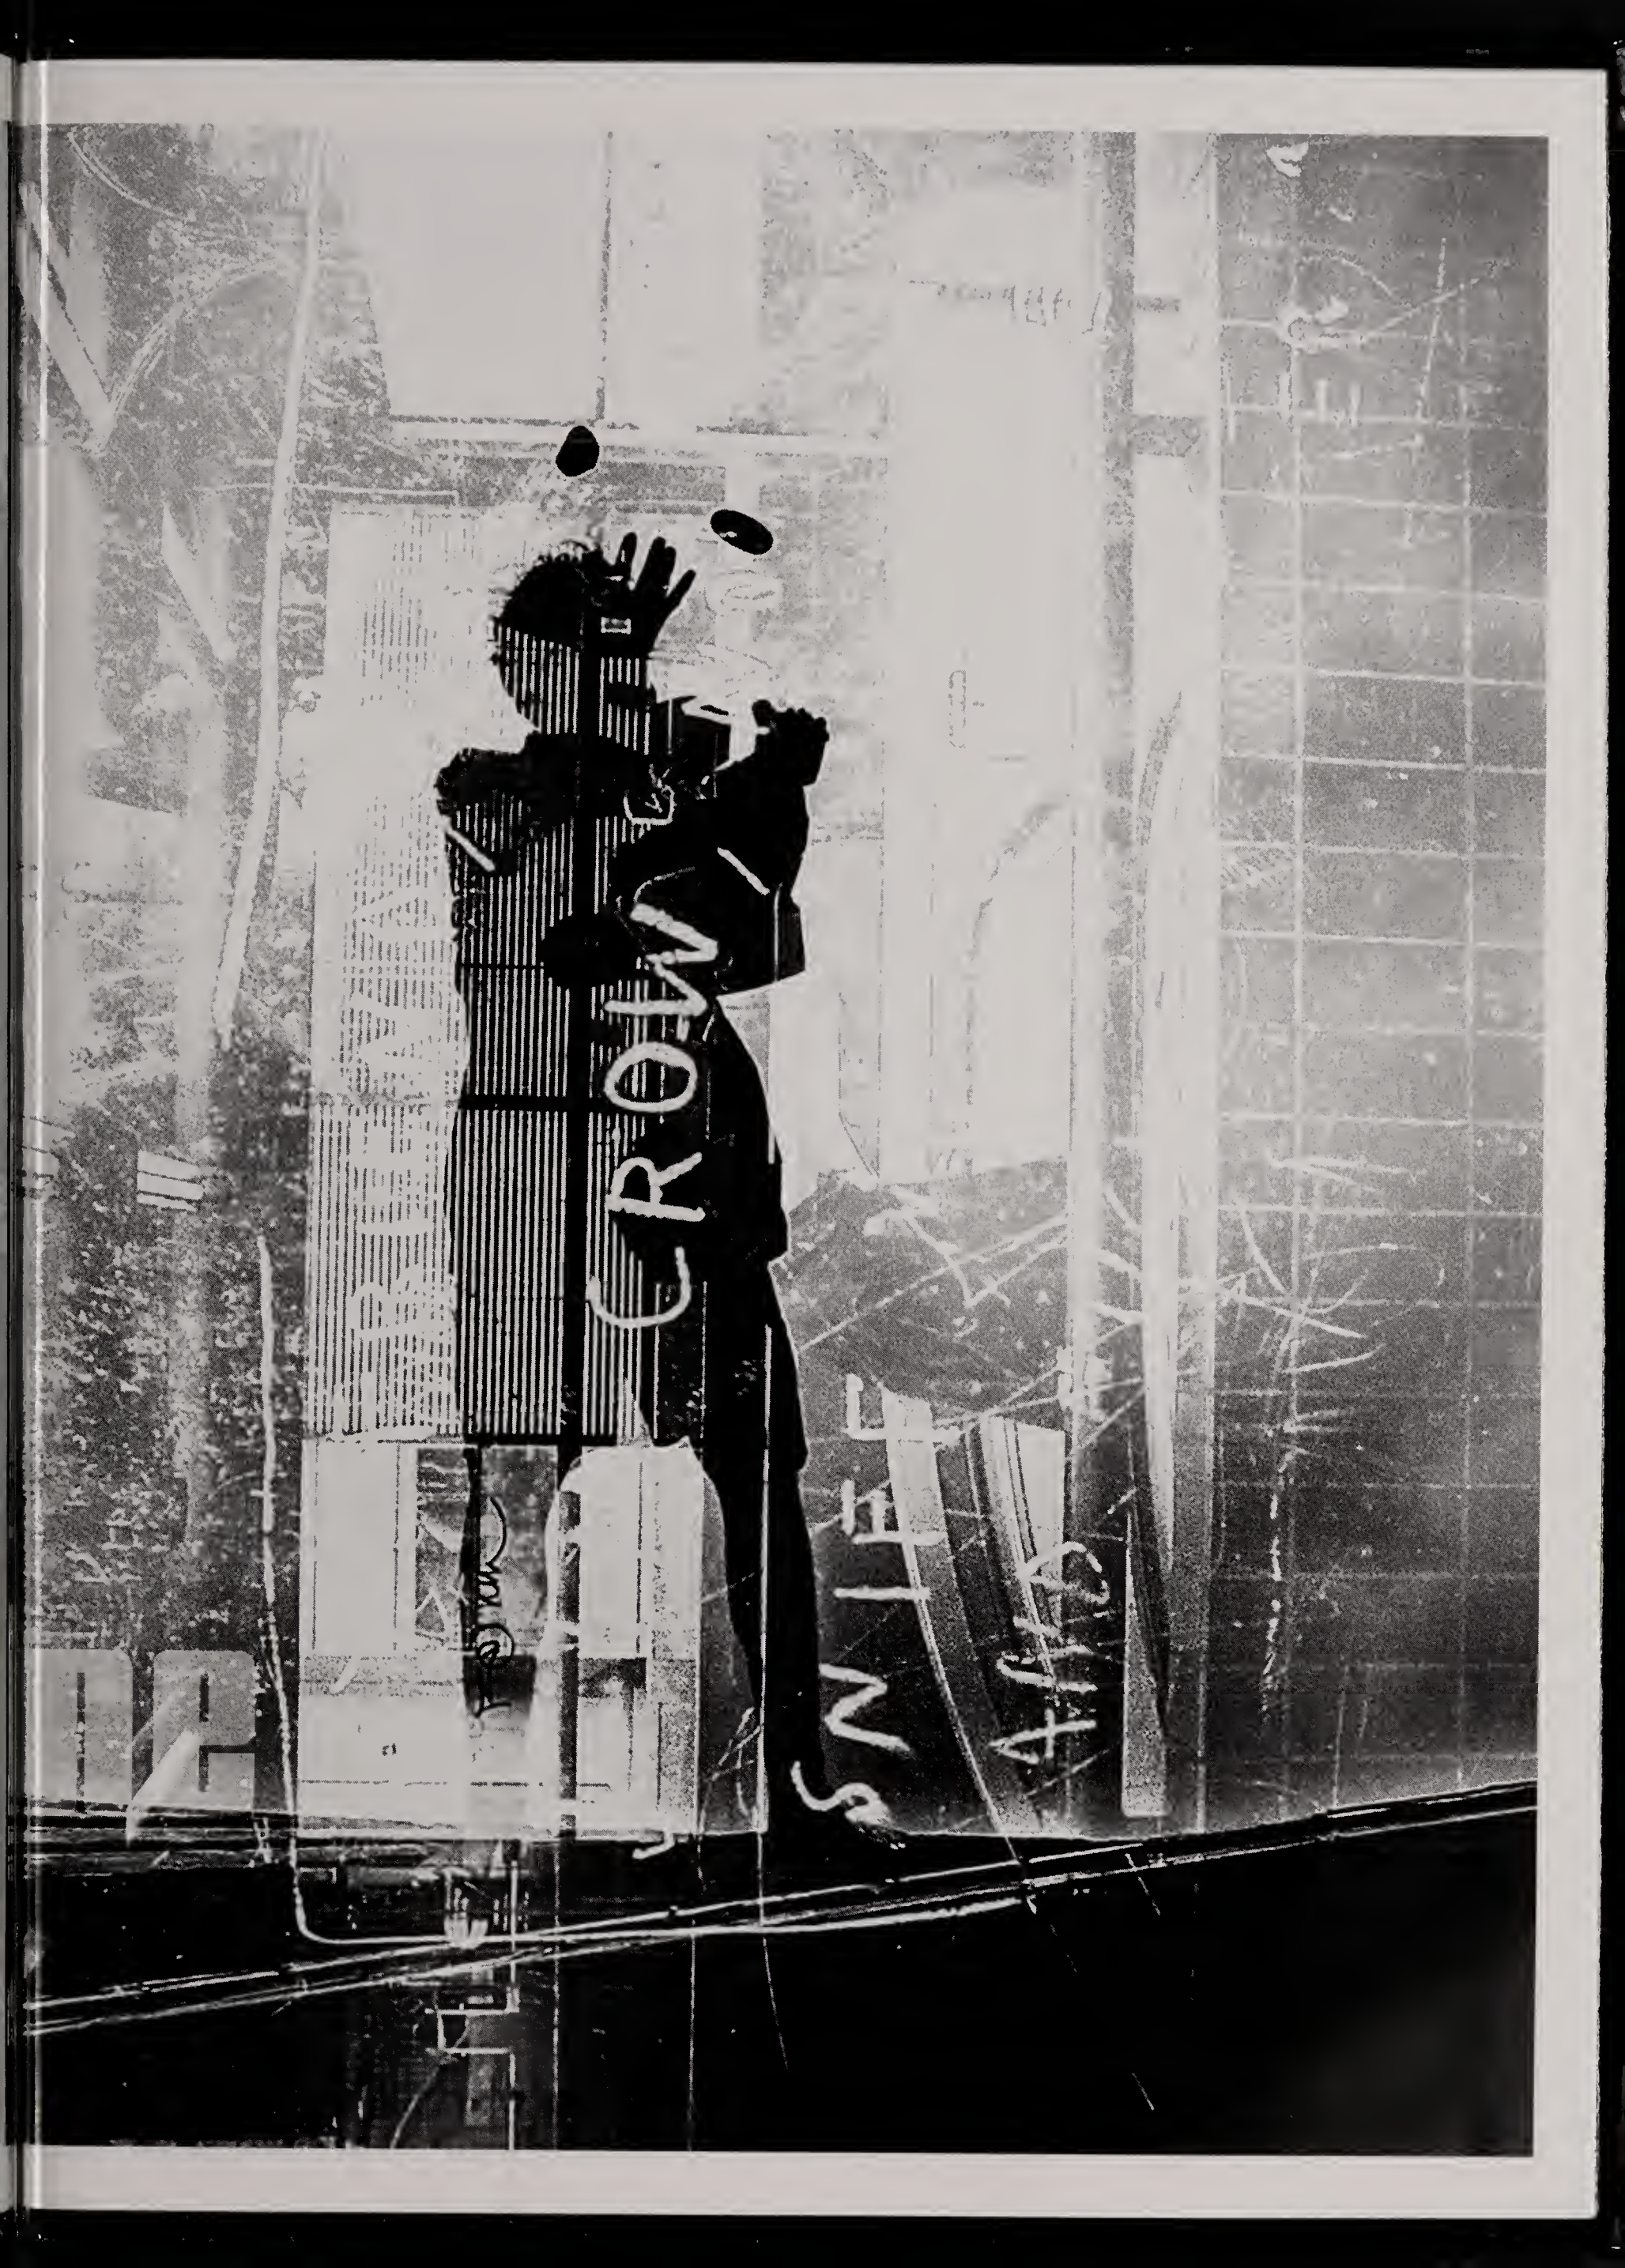

That until there is no longer first class
And second class citizens of any nation
Until the colour of a man's skin
Is of no more significance than the colour of his eyes
Me say war

That until the basic human rights are equally
Guaranteed to all, without regard to race
Dis a war

That until that day
The dream of lasting peace, world citizenship
Rule of international morality
Will remain in but a fleeting illusion
To be pursued, but never attained
Now everywhere is war, war -Bob Marley

YEARBOOK STAFF The Creators 02' - 03'

This production is an archive of creations that compound to form a reflection of our era. Two teams of designers along with a plethora of contributing minds joined under leadership and guidance to build a story with our freedoms. This book transcends the familiar and native boundries associated with former yearbooks. We have tried to reinvent this year's book by capturing the honest pulse of the school. The intention of this book is to evoke an emotion, memory, or to ignite a theory you never examined before. This book may disturb some, but others will find the depth and content refreshing. We hope this document will become a template for future development. As you absorb this book, be delighted, be angered, but allow yourself to think outside the box. From cover to cover, spine and binding, discover and just enjoy!

I would like to acknowledge the great freedom that Mr. Baer has permitted us and his willingness to be flexible. Honest and solid, he has been an advisor, teacher and parental influence on my position. He is the source of infinite critique, opinion, and guidance.

In addition I must spotlight the quality, texture and editing of Mr. McCarthy. He has remained the devoted element to this team's organization, quality, and content.

I am thankful for all experience this role has offered me. The criticism, the discrepancies and the support have all molded my various points of view. Thanks to all those who have shared in and continually contributed to this fine piece of art.

Enjoy!
